‘Quantum Leap’ is the phrase used by Prime Minister Modi in expressing his ambition for the UK India partnership following his virtual summit in May with his UK counterpart, Boris Johnson.

IGF is the agenda-setting forum for international business and global leaders. It offers a selection of platforms that international corporates and policymakers can leverage to interact with stakeholders in their sectors and geographies of strategic importance.

In the aftermath of Covid-19, world leaders are increasingly advocating a "Global Green Recovery". A vital element of this proposed growth plan is green investments. The financial community, especially institutional investors, are reassessing their strategies in this new scenario. As institutional investors increasingly look to allocate more capital towards low-carbon investments, there remains an urgent need for global leadership to strengthen strategic partnerships between institutional investors and policymakers in emerging economies to promote projects as an infrastructure asset class.

Points of Discussion:

- Fiscal and monetary policy moves to trigger transformational action on climate change
- Reshaping fiscal policy to discourage carbon emissions and incentivise shift to clean energy sources
- Enhancing monetary policy to actively drive institutional capital for climate projects
- Making change happen faster – accelerating policy ambitions into actions
